SATURDAY, MAY 14, 1859.

The Journal of Commerce, which, with its sympathies for British manufacturers and its advocacy of British interests, has naturally worked its way up to the position of commanding influence with the Buchanan administration, tells us, that, although the date has not yet been fined for the meeting of Buchanan administration, tells us, that, although the date has not yet been finad for the meeting of the Charleston convention, the fact that it is to be hald at a point so far South will doubtlese prempt the committee having the subject is charge to name an early day, when delegates will feel asfe as regards health in visiting a Southern lattinde. The convention of 1856, at Cinciunati, assembled on the 2d of June; but it will probably be deemed prudent to call that of 1860, at Charleston, at least a month, possibly near two months, earlier. There is, therefore, in any avent, less than twelve months ramaining for the preliminaries to one of the greatest health in which the country has aver been contented in which the country has aver been consisted in the South, would be for the president of the present condition of the present condit ing for the preliminaries to one of the greatest weaken him at home. sing for the preliminaries to one of the greatest political contests in which the country has aver been angaged. But the important feature in the official comments of the Journal of Commerce is the following declaration:

Whether the Democratic party, in the future, as it has done recognity in the part, will key down a platform, and treeved a conditions recognition to the property of the part, will key down a platform, and treeved a conditions recognition to the property of the property of

This is doubtless intended as a feeler, and is

The same general policy that we ought to adopt to steal the negroes of Sontherners naving into the Territory is still being rose of Sontherners naving into the American continent. There should so seem sort of Sonater Green in trying to throw around the Democratic party to keep it from figing into fragmants. The paragraph lays it hand apon the popular pulse to see whether it beats responsive to the enggestion to Sominate a man without any resilimation of a platform, and it is highly probable that this is the course which the Charlaston convention will parase. There is another point in the comments of the Journal which shows how thoroughly identified in feeling with cld Federal principles it and its party have become. It considers the aystem which prevails in come States of electing delegates by district objectionable and inconvenient, because it in the States and not stration of its which is known in an another convention, and the States should be prepared to oppose the state who, while they do not go as far as the Lonisville Democratic block in his veina he would let it out, and, as a Federalizid declared that if he had a drop of Democratic block in his veina he would let it out, and, as a Federalizid declared that if he had a drop of Democratic block in his veina he would let it out, and, as a Federalizid declared the war of 1812 urjust and monstrous and the administration of Madison a curse, the aim of Federalizim has been to take power from the people and give it to cliques. If delagates elected by districts in State can meet in convention and the laws against the reconsist of the Cincinnati Convention of Warnish and monstrous and the administration of Madison a curse, the aim of Federalizim has been to take power from the people and give it to cliques. If delagates elected by districts in State can meet in convention to choose candidates for Governor or Fresidential electors at the state who is the course of the cliques. If the laws a state the cliques. If the laws a state the cliques. If the laws and first declared the war of 1812 upjnst and monstrous and the administration of Madison a carse, the aim of Federalism has been to take power from the poople and give it to cliques. If delagates elected by districts in a State can meet in convention to choose candidates for Governor or Presidential alectors at large, why can they not also monimate a President? The Journal of Commerce objects to allowing State Lagislatures to choose delegates, and prefers the agency of State conventions, because "delagates from though the people and representing avery section of a State can with more falreess and more justice select representatives of the political sestiment than persons chosen mainly for another object and representing but a portion of the towns or counties which senting but a portion of the towns or counties which electing delegates fresh from the people by giving should be taken as will insure the tricts. servative Democrats of the Ashland District! To the rescue, and let us have a cheering report of the grand army of reserve to crash out the least expression of the popular will. No system could be devised which so completely revaries the idea of the popular representation as the organization of the popular representation of the popular representation of the popular representation of the popular representation as the organization of the popular representation as the organization of the popular representation as the organization of the popular representation of the popular representation as the organization of the popular representation of the popular of the most recording of the most recording of the most recording of the understance of the popular of the most recording of the understance of the popular representation of the popular as the popular of the popular popular of the po bolders select the dalegates and pull the wires while the puppets dance. Thus, with a control over the Charleston nowination, Mr. Buchanan is represented there by these 106 votes, to which, if necessary, may be added by the same appliances, the Status of Naw Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Kantucky, Tousessee, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, and such tacky, Tousessee, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, and Santa tacky, Tousessee, Ohio, Michigan, I tacky, Toucease, Ohio, Michigan, Iediana, and such that are needed to complete a two third vote; and where then is the arpression of popular opinion without productions and the people are neither allowed to direct its movements nor examine its complications. Look at the working of this machinery. Suppose Mr. Buchanan selects Glancy Jones as the Charleston nominee and winds up the cogs and wheels. One hundred votes will courted the convention. It is convention; the people will be convention. The custom Houses and Post Offices in the localities named control the State Conventions would act by direction of Polkmantar Jordan and Badger, of Maine, Carrier and Randlett, of Naw Hampshire; Danfarth and Cain, of Varmont; Capper, Hildrich, and acknown, of Manachasetts; Atkinson and Gallup, of linear the people are time of contending the grand army of vaserve to crush out the least expression of the popular will.
